

OFX Service - Donation Walkthrough:

You may be more familiar with PayPal and their PayPal Xoom service but shopping around and leveraging another service like OFX may, after all be a more effective way to giving. The last time we checked we were able to save almost 9% in costs by leveraging the OFX service.

That felt like we were able to give to the refugees 9% more with the same money at hand. This is significant!

Here is the walk-through on how to transfer money to Poland with OFX:

1. I (Robert here) already have an account with OFX, so I cannot quite walk you through the setup, but it is simple. You can get started with the OFX here and it looks like in the below:

^ PROCEED WITH CAUTION

To protect yourself from becoming the victim of a scam, please contact us immediately at 1-888-966-6888, if you answer yes to any of the following questions. Have you been asked to send money:

- to claim an unsolicited lottery prize, sweepstakes winnings or inheritance?
- to buy a product or service where the price seems too good to be true?
- to someone who claims to be a relative needing cash for an "emergency" and you cannot independently verify the caller's identity or claim?
- in response to an Internet or phone offer that requests money for a guaranteed credit card or loan, disaster relief, job offer, or a charity?

We urge you not to send money to someone you do not know personally or have only met over the Internet. For more information concerning fraud-induced money transfers and a list of additional consumer money scams, visit the FTC website at www.ftc.gov.

3. It may take from one to four days for the money to clear the sending and the receiving banks. We have never had a problem with neither of the discussed services and we have accounts and sent monies with each of them.

Summary: This may not be fast, but it is a safe and cost-effective way of sending money internationally.

Thank you for your donation and for your support!
